Decreasing cloudiness northwest tonight and over the southeast Tuesday. Fair northwest Tuesday. Cooler northwest half tonight, otherwise no important temperature changes. Low tonight in 60s northwest to low 70s southeast.

LOUISIANA — Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday. Widely scattered thundershowers tonight and scattered thundershowers Tuesday. Low tonight 72-78.

Encephalitis Drive Is Stepped Up

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Health authorities, stepping up their campaign against a Dallas encephalitis epidemic, doubled their spraying efforts today, with a total of six planes available instead of a previous three.

Deaths from the disease now total 5.

Four planes, seeking the eradicate the culex mosquito, bearer of the killer disease, began spraying at dawn.

They can operate for only a little more than two hours because the spray does not fall if temperatures go above 80 degrees.

The additional C123 planes arrived Sunday, the crews still were in combat gear, for they had been first marked for defoliation work in Viet Nam.

Two of the planes were grounded today while crewmen installed nozzles.

Lost Continent

Plato first described the lost continent of Atlantis and some critics believe that it was purely his invention. Some people suggest that the island referred either to the Canary Islands, the Scandinavian peninsula or even the North American continent.

Nothing New on Back Side of the Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — America's first bright, clear close-ups of the moon's mysterious far side show pretty much what was expected — nothing new.

Two good, sharply focused pictures transmitted to Earth Sunday by the Lunar Orbiter spacecraft just show more lumps and craters — a carbon copy, almost, of the familiar near side.

Orbiter, an 850-pound American shuttlebug locked in orbit around the moon, took the two shots late Friday and early Saturday, processed them in a small on-board laboratory, then radioed them back for scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

The pictures show much more detail than photos sent back in 1959 by the Soviet Luna 3, scientists said, although spokesmen for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration didn't interpret the new shots immediately.

First received was the high-resolution photo — showing an area about 75 by 100 miles — taken by the spacecraft's ailing close-up camera. It was centered on a point about 150 degrees west longitude and 5 degrees south latitude.

The other photo, taken in the same general area, covered about 590 by 220 miles. It was taken by the medium-resolution lens, which has worked perfectly throughout the mission.

The craft was able to take a good picture with the close-up lens, scientists said, because they didn't activate the erring motion compensation system.

MOP Seeks to Purchase Line

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission was told Thursday that Missouri Pacific Railroad's plan to buy the Alton and Southern Railroad would be "in the best interest of all the railroads."

Frank J. Conrad, vice president of Mopac, testified at a hearing on the proposed sale of Alton and Southern to either Mopac or the Southern Pacific-Cotton Belt.

Both of the larger railroads have applied to purchase Alton and Southern for $16 million.

Mopac said it would welcome joint ownership with other railroads but Conrad said Southern Pacific-Cotton Belt had not offered to accept any partners.

The Mopac officials said the Alton and Southern was the most important switching interchange for Mopac in the St. Louis area.

Commentator Fulton Lewis Dead at 63

WASHINGTON (AP) — Broadcaster and columnist Fulton Lewis Jr., a voice of conservative American thinking for three decades, is dead of a heart attack at 63.

He died early Sunday in a Washington hospital, where he had undergone surgery for pancreatitis two months ago.

In recent years he had two daily newscasts on the Mutual Broadcasting System and wrote a syndicated column, "Washington Reports," which appeared in more than 200 newspapers across the country.

Lewis once said he felt he was the man who spoke for the small-town businessman, "Mr. Average Listener," who had a home in the suburbs, a mortgage and children.

He had stated his personal and professional credo this way:

"The public has no idea of the gypping it is taking, of how often the wool is pulled over its eyes. This is very serious business, the people are supposed to be running the show; actually they are often being duped."

"I am dedicated to change that."

Lewis began his radio work in 1937 after serving as a reporter and later as city editor of the old Washington Herald, a Hearst newspaper, and as a Washington correspondent for the Universal Service and International News Service. He was a war correspondent during World War II.

A spokesman for the Mutual Broadcasting System said Lewis' son, Fulton Lewis III, may continue the radio program, "The Top of the News."

Surviving with his widow, Alice, and his son is a daughter, Alice Elizabeth.

Memorial services will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. at St. David's Episcopal Church in Washington. Burial will be private.

Child Killed in Accident

JACKSONVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Rodney Garrenger, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Garrenger of near Lonoke, was killed Monday night when he was struck by a car near Arkansas 69, about seven miles south of here.

Jacksonville police said the child was struck by a hit-and-run driver.

Whipping Charge to Be Probed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state attorney general's office will handle the case of a convict at the state penitentiary who has charged he was whipped because he couldn't see, Warden O. E. Bishop said Saturday.

William King Jackson, 27, of Gresham, S.C., filed a neatly printed, six-page petition in U.S. District Court Friday charging that he was punished for overlooking — because of his poor vision — "okra in the field."

Each convict prepared a medical report on his physical condition upon entering the prison, Bishop said, and Jackson's report "did not indicate any eye trouble."

The five-foot long leather strap was the center of controversy about six months ago but has been dormant since the state Penitentiary Board established a set of rules, under court order, governing its use.

A federal judge ruled last November that use of the strap constituted cruel and unusual punishment under the constitution unless a set of explicit rules for its use was established.

The petition by Jackson will mark the first court test of the new regulations.

"We'll let the court decide," Bishop said. "The attorney general will handle the case for us and we'll probably have an answer to the suit on Tuesday or Wednesday."

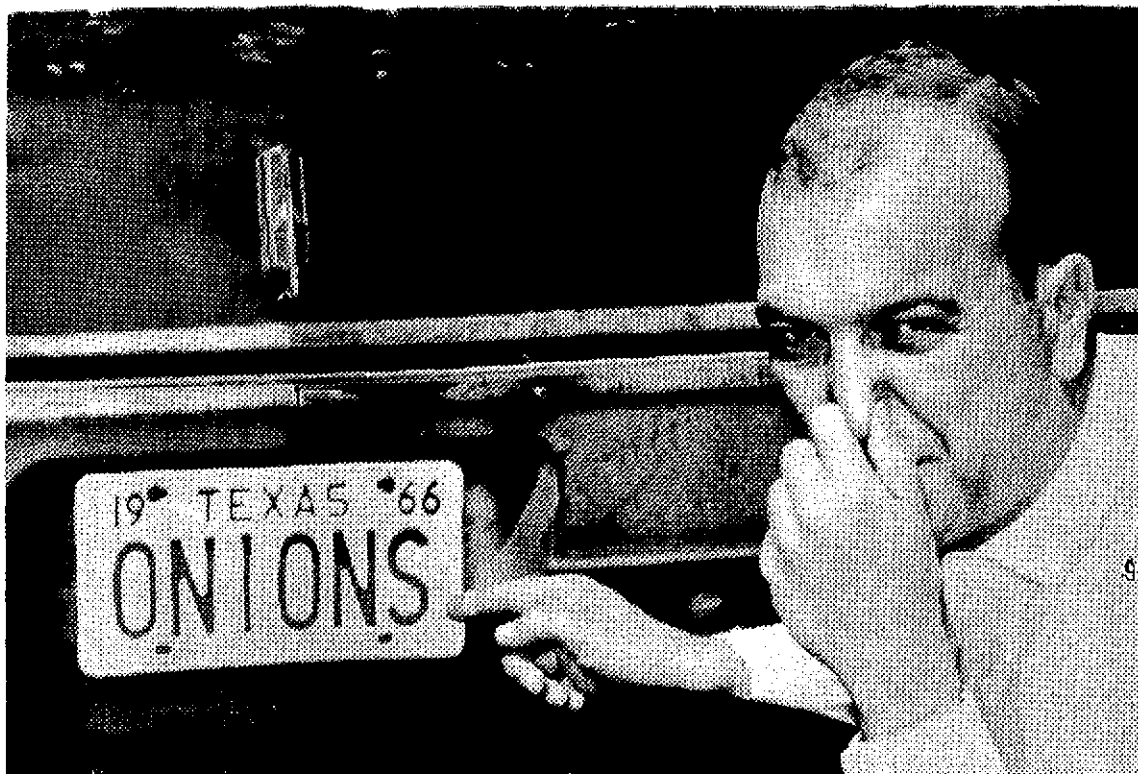

The new rules state that a convict may be whipped for not meeting his quota in the fields, if a two-man prison board so decides.

Quotas are based on a man's age and physical condition, according to prison officials.

Bishop took over as superintendent from Dan Stephens, who resigned in January in the wake of the whipping controversy.

Jackson is serving a five-year sentence for burglary.

The sivery pintish is so clever it has been nicknamed the "bait stealer."

Power Not Enough, Says Mr. Johnson

By KARL R. BAUMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says there is a real limit to power because the United States has the means of unlimited destruction "but we do not have the power alone to make peace."

In a speech Sunday on Canadian soil, Johnson declared: "Only when those who promote aggression agree to reason will the world know again the blessings of peace."

The President's address followed a meeting with Canadian Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson at which the two leaders discussed the Viet Nam war and other matters.

Johnson flew to Canada after a "nonpolitical" weekend stump through upper New York and New England.

The President and Pearson dedicated a visitors' pavilion now under construction on Campobello Island, New Brunswick, where President Franklin D. Roosevelt had a summer home which still stands in the middle of a 10-acre international park. "The history of mankind is the history of conflict and agony and of wars and rumors of war."

Johnson said: "No man loved peace more than Franklin Roosevelt. It was ty that some men still believe in the marrow of his soul and I force and try to impose their never saw him more grieved will on others by aggression."

than when reports came from the War Department of American casualties in a major battle. "But he led this nation courageously in combat — not for war's sake, but because he knew that beyond the war lay

Aides to the prime minister said there has been no change in his basic position on Viet Nam: support for the purposes and objectives of U.S. policies on Viet Nam.

Send your teenage questions to Helen Help US!, this newspaper.

AS THE TWIG IS BENT

Dear Helen: You told me not to forget it when her poor little kid got beat up by her teacher. (Note from H: Hold up there, friend! I advised against taking action on a long-past incident because I didn't buy the child's story.)

That's right stick up for the no-good teachers, that will egg them on to be meaner. They hate our kids and like it fine when they can get something on them so they can beat them. And the school board says Okay!

My boys have been beat on and bawled out and picked on since they first started school. I can't get nowhere with the principal. He hates parents like he hates the kids. He can't get a job anywhere else because he isn't good enough.

I tell you, Helen, you just don't know. Teachers take it out on our kids because they're jealous. They are overpaid for not much work, and they think they're little tin gods. But my kids won't bow down to them. So they get bad grades. That's how the teachers get even. — Mr. X Who Knows

Dear Mr. X: Your children get what YOU deserve! It's a pity they must forfeit an education because your hate-talk has turned them into haters too. They're little hellions because they're whipped up by your twisted ideas. With you egging them on, they will be lose-outs and drop-outs who blame their failures on society — as they wait in line for their relief checks — unless someone can change their thinking in time, and make them realize that he who throws mud usually stands in it. — H.

Dear Helen: Any wild and wacky questions lately? Please share. — Hopeful

Dear Hopeful: A few. For example:

Dear Helen: Do sunflower seeds give you cancer? — Nut Cracker

Dear Helen: If you drink water standing on your head, will it cure you of hiccoughs? — A Reader

The answer to the first is NO, and to the second: Only an astronaut could tell you for sure. Try it and you'll see what I mean! — H.

HOUSEHOLD DILEMMA

I have three pre-schoolers and one husband at the kindergarten stage — so I think at times. Our battle is over paper plates — the attractive, plastic-coated, heat-

Is White River Carnival Queen

BATESVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A 17-year-old Helena beauty, Patsy Lueken, won the title of Queen White River at the annual White River Water Carnival here Saturday night.

Miss Lueken and Leonette Reed, 19, of Heber Springs, winner of the Miss North Arkansas contest Friday night, both win a trip to New York.

First runner-up in the Queen White River competition was Margaret Cotton of Dardanelle and Jana Walker of West Memphis was second runner-up.

Miss Lueken succeeded Margo Gibson of Conway as White River Queen.

In a three minute speech earlier in the day, Republican gubernatorial candidate Winthrop Rockefeller said the state "has waited 100 years for a two-party system."

The state has that opportunity this year, he said.

Mrs. Jim Johnson, wife of the Democratic candidate for governor, was scheduled to appear, carnival officials said, but she wasn't there.

resistant variety. I use them year round, not just for patio barbecues, and the children get practically all their meals on them.

My husband gets regular dishes, cups and glasses, except at lunch. But he still feels he married me to "love, honor and wash dishes." He doesn't complain about the cost (about $1.50 per week), just the idea. He thinks a table should be set with the kind of dishes that would make me stand over a hot sink.

If we have guests for dinner, there's not a paper plate in sight, but I admit that casual snacks for after-movie parties come out on paper plates.

What do you say? Am I lazy or practical? Truthfully I don't even want a dishwasher. This takes less time. — Paper Plate Advocate

Dear P.P.A.: You're practical but no practical enough to see that compromise works better than a columnist's promise of support. . . which can turn a husband off faster than you can burn a paper plate.

Why not paper for breakfast and lunch and a real table setting for dinner, provided the "boss" makes it with the dishwasher? — H.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A Hollywood trade paper recently carried a note that a producer of a television series was trying to get Raymond Burr, whose "Perry Mason" series recently came to an end, to play a trial lawyer in one episode.

It is extremely doubtful that, no matter how attractive the series, money or role, Burr could be persuaded to take the assignment. That is type-casting, more dreaded by actors than a low Nielsen rating.

However, Shirley Booth has her own ideas about type-casting.

"Well," she said with a smile as she concentrated on maneuvering her hardtop into a right-hand lane for a turn onto Sunset Boulevard, "nobody has offered me any parts as a domestic."

Miss Booth, an Oscar winner — "Come Back Little Sheba" — and a three-time winner of Broadway's "Tony," has wound up five busy years of playing the title role in "Hazel," a comedy that earned her an "Emmy" as well.

The first assignment she accepted was the lead in a CBS special, Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," which will be produced in London in October for broadcast early in December.

"Of course, I've been offered lots of guest star roles," she continued, moving into the noon-hour stream of traffic. "And some series. I really don't want to get into another series but I'm very reluctant to say 'never' about anything because something might come along and I'll change my mind."

When the chance to do the Williams play turned up, she said, she was even reluctant about that, at first.

"I remember Laurette Taylor in the Amanda part," she said. "I remember that performance so vividly — she really contributed something important to theater with it, I didn't feel as if I wanted to take on something in which I'd just be doing an imitation of somebody else."

The car drew into a driveway of a handsome little house on a hillside in a secluded section and there followed a leisurely luncheon in the patio. One eye was on the clock, however, for she was due back at the studio in midafternoon to wind up chores on a two-hour film, "Package Deal" she is making for NBC's "World Premiere" series next season.

"I also decided to do this film, even though it broke into my Cape Cod summer," she continued. "Pleasant parts — women with humor and wholesome outlooks — are hard to find these days, and I just didn't feel like playing a lady drunk or a woman of loose morals and those parts are all over the place now."

Meanwhile, reruns of "Hazel" will be on television channels all over the lot — which provides a painless steady income for the star.

Miss Booth, still remembered fondly as "Miss Duffy" in radio's immortal "Duffy's Tavern" and as a musical comedy star of Broadway's "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," has four homes.

Her voting residence is the hillside house in Los Angeles. For weekends and holidays in winter, there is her recently acquired desert home beyond Palm Springs. Back East she has her summer home in Chatham on the Cape, plus the co-op apartment she owns in New York.

Forests for the Future

Genetic control developed this stand of perfect pines, destined to reach heights of nearly 70 feet, at the Alabama nursery of a major wood pulp producer, Kimberly-Clark Corp.

U.S. consumption of wood products is skyrocketing with a major share of rising demand accounted for by a "paper explosion." More and more paper is being used for more and more purposes—for publications, for disposables in homes and industry, for office copying and electronic data processing equipment, and even for clothing. Current consumption is estimated at some 51 million tons a year, about 520 pounds for every American, and growing. To meet the increasing demand on the nation's timber resources, forest genetics experts are turning to the same scientific techniques that in the past have yielded better corn, wheat, cotton and many other agricultural advances. The process of developing strains of supertrees to meet the needs of the future already is well under way.

This crop of seedling pines, the end product of grafting and cross-pollinating superior trees, will be transplanted in cut-over forest areas. By the time the new trees are mature and ready to harvest, in 30 years, U.S. demand is expected to be more than double the present.

Cross-pollination is accomplished by wrapping plastic bags filled with pollen from superior "male" pine flowers around "female" flowers. The bag keeps out wind-carried pollen from inferior trees, resulting in a cone containing superior seed for nursery planting.

Forest genetics experts study the seedling of a supertree.

Poor Man in Politics Has Rugged Time

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — Political campaign financing is producing the usual: some handwringing, some indignation, some gloomy forebodings about the dwindling chances of the poor man in politics.

This has been happening on and off all year in Congress but by the time Congress goes home it probably will have done nothing, as it has for years despite the cries for reform.

Just last month Rep. James C. Wright Jr., D-Tex., said the high cost of campaigning is making it impossible for any but the wealthy — "or the willing wards of the wealthy" — to seek public office.

And Thursday Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said unless something is done it will be "practically only for the rich to seek high elective office."

"Colossal" was Sen. Thurston B. Morton's word for present campaign costs. This Kentucky Republican is his party's campaign chairman in the Senate.

Under present law no candidate for the House can spend more than $5,000 in his bid for election, no candidate for the Senate more than $25,000.

Wright has said probably every member of Congress has knowingly evaded the purpose of the law limiting election campaign expenses.

The present law permits $5,000 contributions to any number of committees set up to aid a candidate.

With that in mind, no doubt, President Johnson last May asked Congress to reform campaign financing, saying the present $5,000 limit could no longer be evaded by "putting the maximum amount into different pockets of the same suit."

Under existing law national political committees can raise and spend no more than $3 million in any one year — but there is no limit on the number of such committees and the law doesn't apply to committees active in only one state.

Johnson, when he asked Congress for sweeping reforms in May, proposed among other things:

1. All candidates and committees supporting them for federal office would have to report, clearly and promptly, the sources of all their campaign funds and how the funds are spent.

2. Members of Congress would have to disclose all gifts and income.

3. Change existing law and make the ceilings on the size of contributions to campaigns really mean what they say.

4. Encourage widespread public participation in the financing of political campaigns through tax deductions of up to $100 for campaign contributions.

This got a cool reception. Members of Congress have never tumbled over one another in their haste to disclose the sources of their campaign income. Chances for passage of Johnson's program this year look zero.

Long has a plan for the federal treasury to pay the cost of presidential campaigns at the rate of $1 a vote. He said this would free nominees from the promises they now have to make to wealthy contributors. But there's a hassle over this, just as there is over Johnson's proposals, and over practically any proposed change connected with campaign financing.

It's just possible that before Congress quits for the year — perhaps in October — the Senate may pass something. It's unlikely. But there can't be any change unless the House also approves. It shows little inclination to do this.

Thinks French Leader May Set Up Peace

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said today French President Charles de Gaulle's scheduled visit to Cambodia might produce some first steps toward Viet Nam peace negotiations.

Mansfield said in an interview that De Gaulle's discussions with Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodian chief of state, are certain to include possible means of ending the war.

"These discussions will might produce some tentative steps toward negotiations," he said. He added that while De Gaulle has criticized the U.S. course in Viet Nam, he believes the French president would do what he can to end the fighting.

Mansfield noted that De Gaulle is maintaining communications with Hanoi and recently has stepped up the ranking of the French commercial mission there.

"I think Hanoi would be likely to give its attention to any suggestions that De Gaulle might make," he said.

Mansfield, who has conferred several times with Sihanouk on visits to Cambodia, said that after De Gaulle's visit the prince may be more amenable to visit by U.S. roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Sihanouk postponed a proposed visit by Harriman next month because of the U.S. bombing of a village which the prince claims is in Cambodian territory.

In other developments Sunday:

— Former White House press secretary Pierre Salinger told the CBS television program "Face the Nation" that if President John F. Kennedy were still alive, he probably would be running the Viet Nam war much as President Johnson has.

— Sen. Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii, advocated the bombing of Haiphong harbor to halt the flow of munitions into North Viet Nam. He said if that measure had been taken 1½ years ago — when the Republicans advocated such a move — "probably the conflict would have been ended."

In the interview, Mansfield said he fears the internal upheaval in Communist China — which appears to have installed Defense Minister Lin Biao as second man to Mao Tse-tung — will result in a hardening of anti-American policies.

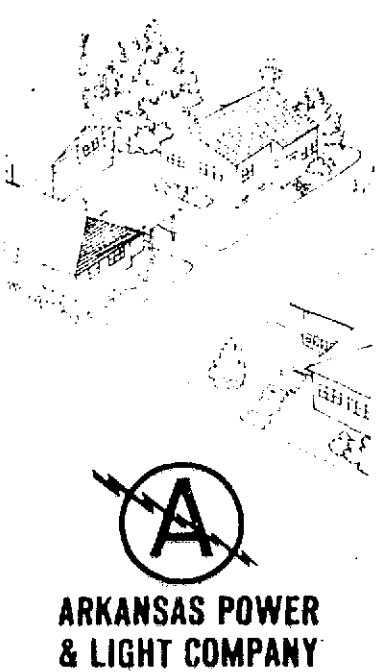

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., a Foreign Relations Committee member, said in a separate interview, however, he doesn't believe that China is nearly as responsible for keeping the Vietnamese fighting going as the Soviet Union.

"It's Russia that's keeping this war going," he said.

Satellite Tells Science Many Things

By JIM STROTHMAN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Biologists may not have the stamina to swim behind whales, romp through African jungles chasing elephants or stomp around frigid Arctic regions after polar bears. But they have found a friend to do it for them — an orbiting satellite.

Stalking animals will become one of many chores for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's versatile Nimbus weather satellites, starting with Nimbus 3 to be launched late next year.

Biologists and conservationists want to know more about migratory habits of beasts to prevent animal species from becoming extinct and help them learn what secret migratory sense steers animals to destinations hundreds of miles away. They want answers to questions like:

How do migrating sea turtles find Ascension Island? Where do certain animals go which disappear for months at a time? Do animals navigate by the sun, stars or perhaps magnetic waves?

The navigation system used by whales or sea turtles could be used to steer submarines. Whatever guides ducks and geese southward in winter and north in summer may be useful to aircraft. The caribou's system may aid guidance methods for land vehicles.

Biologists working with the Smithsonian Institution plan to attach special electronic packages to large land animals when Nimbus 3 orbits the globe. The devices are to beam signals that will permit the satellite to plot the animals' location at least twice daily to an accuracy of 1½ miles.

Plans call for the packs to be attached first to large animals, such as elephants, whales, turtles, caribou and polar bears. Each pack weighs about 25 pounds, but researchers for NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center said they may eventually be reduced to about two pounds so biologists can get information on migratory habits of smaller animals as well.

The devices were developed primarily to send weather information — temperature, pressure and humidity readings — from remote ground stations to orbiting Nimbus. As the satellite speeds around the Earth, it relays the readings from the packs to weathermen to help them make worldwide forecasts.

Young Couple, Son Killed in Accident

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A young couple and their one-year-old son were killed Sunday when their car struck a bridge railing on rain-slick U.S. 67-167 between Little Rock and Jacksonville.

Little Rock Air Force Base identified the dead as Airman 1.C Donald J. Cooksey, 24; his wife, Clara Bell, 22; and their son, Shann Alan, 1.

They were among six persons killed in Arkansas traffic accidents during the weekend period between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday, an Associated Press count showed today.

Two other persons were injured — Bertha Gammel, 22, of North Little Rock, and Donald Earl, 3, another son of the Cookseys. The woman was listed in serious condition in a North Little Rock hospital while the child was hospitalized at the base hospital, but was listed as not seriously hurt.

The Air Force said Cooksey was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jahue of Carcoran, Calif., and Mrs. Cooksey was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rhodd of Pixley, Calif. Mrs. Betty McFadden, 40, of Little Rock was killed Sunday when the car in which she was riding went out of control while attempting to pass another car, left the road and overturned.

State Police said the car was driven by her husband, Thomas McFadden, 47, who was listed in serious condition at a Little Rock hospital. The accident happened on U.S. 167 about four miles north of Sheridan. Dale Rickertsen, 23, of Des Moines, Iowa, was killed Sunday when the bicycle he was riding collided head-on with a car on U.S. 67 about 1.5 miles north of Gurdon. State Trooper Earl Orr said the bicycle was struck by a car driven by Marvin Paul Rex, 37, of Dallas.

NEW YORK (AP) — A Coast Guard cutter sped today toward Argentina, Nfld., to hospitalize Capt. William Willis, 72, who had been attempting to sail his 11-foot boat solo to England. A doctor aboard the cutter Ingham, which reached the frail craft Sunday night far out in the foggy Atlantic, diagnosed Willis' ailment as a strangulated hernia — as the sailor had thought when he reported to a passing freighter he was ailing. The cutter was expected to reach Argentina at 8:30 a.m. EDT Tuesday.

Lots of people have single-track minds. If they want to win at bridge they would do well to check whether their track is the right one.

South let West hold the first trick with the king of diamonds. West could see no reason to shift to another suit. After all his partner's play of the six spot might have been a come-on. South had been careful to drop the eight and hold back the deuce. So West played a second diamond and South rattled off the rest of the tricks.

He led a club to dummy's ace and ruffed a club with a high trump. Note that he held back another deuce this time. Then he led his deuce of hearts to dummy's seven and ruffed another club. A second trump lead went to dummy's ace and the ruff of a third club dropped East's king and set up dummy's queen. Now South ruffed his last diamond with dummy's last trump and discarded his queen of spades on the queen of clubs.

West commented on how lucky South had been to hold two valuable deuces. We feel that South was even luckier in that West kept his mind on that single track.

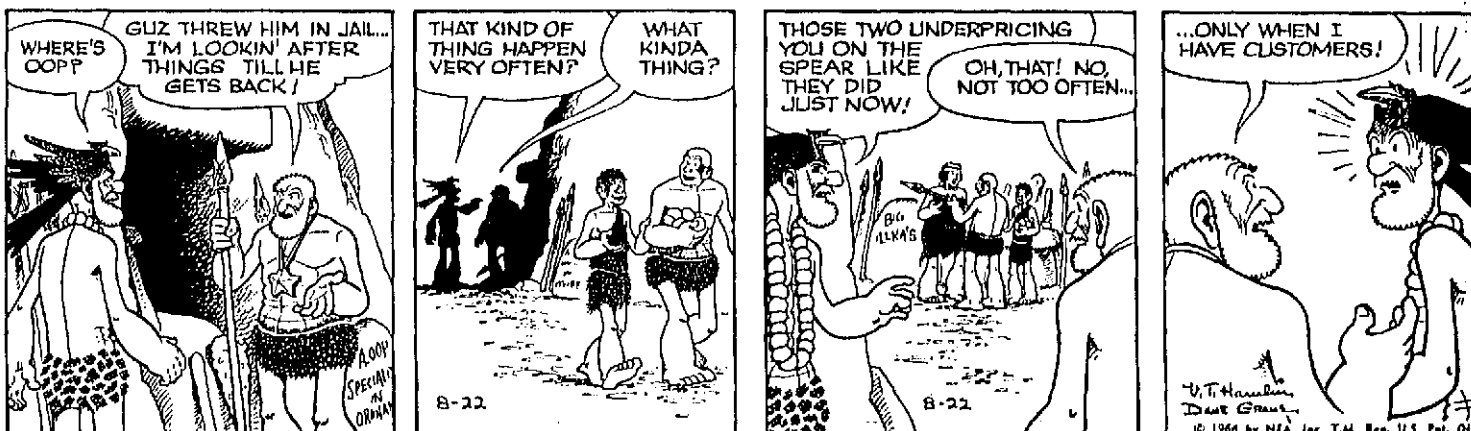

If West had really stopped to think at trick two he would have realized that East could not hold the ace of diamonds. South's follow-up Blackwood five no-trump bid guaranteed that his side held all the aces. Then West could have shifted to a trump and South would have been one entry short in setting up that queen of clubs.

In that case North would have been upset. He might point out that South could take the first diamond and be sure of his contract as long as clubs broke 4-3 and trumps 2-1.

At Little Rock Zoo Pigs Taught to Be Useful With Chores

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:
America now has four times as many widows as widowers, or 8,815,000 to 2,129,000.
Each day of the year, about 4,500 U.S. schoolchildren start smoking.
At a Little Rock, Ark., zoo, pigs have been taught to guard the home, fetch and carry and even retrieve game birds shot in the field. But when a burglar is surprised in our home we want an animal around that can do more than merely grunt at him reproachfully.
Depending on your viewpoint, you will be either delighted or dismayed to learn our fast-growing population now includes 22 million teen-agers.

AREA Group Wants to Keep Status

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Leaders of the Arkansas Rural Education Association want to preserve their power and status regardless of what happens to the children and teachers, Forrest Rozzell charged Tuesday.
Rozzell attacked AREA, a group formed early this year to fight moves toward school consolidations.
Rozzell, executive director of the Arkansas Education Association, said that in contrast to the objectives of AREA, the AEA aims to improve the quality, range and scope of the educational programs provided all of the children of the state. Also, the AEA seeks "to improve the professional competence, increase the economic well being and protect the personal, professional and civic rights of all members of the education profession," Rozzell said.
AEA leadership has backed a proposed initiated act which would dissolve school districts with fewer than 400 pupils by consolidating them with neighboring districts.
The rural group's board of directors voted Monday to recommend that the 7,000 teachers in schools affiliated with AREA refuse to pay their AEA dues, giving the fees instead to AREA.
Rozzell said that "many of the AREA promoters are planning to retain their AEA membership in order to protect their insurance program."
AREA leaders were reported to be seeking a company to set up an insurance program for AREA members.

About teacher support for AREA, Rozzell said that perhaps the best answer he could give lies in the "contrasts between the attendance at and purposes of the two-hour AREA meeting held Monday and the 2-day meeting of the AEA which began Monday" at Arkadelphia.
Rozzell cited newspaper accounts that reported some 70 superintendents and school board members and "few, if any, classroom teachers" at the AREA meeting.
"In the AEA meeting, there are approximately 250 professional educators, almost 200 of them classroom teachers," he said.
The primary objective of the rural group, Rozzell said, "is to preserve the power and status of certain superintendents and school board members regardless of what happens to the children and teachers of these districts."
Sniper Victim to be Helped
HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — Irma Garcia of Harlingen was a University of Texas senior shot by an Austin sniper Aug. 1, will be the recipient of a fund that already has reached $2,000.
The fund for Miss Garcia, an orphan, was started by Les Brecht, an announcer for station KGBT-TV.
Miss Garcia, 21, suffered a broken arm, broke, collarbone, punctured lung and two fractured ribs when she was hit by one of the bullets fired by Charles Whitman from his perch in the University of Texas tower.

THE WELL CHILD®

Immediacy Not Important In Umbilical Repair

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A mother writes that her first child was operated on for an umbilical hernia when she was 8 months old. Her second child also had this outpouching of the navel and a different doctor advised waiting until the child was 8 years old before considering an operation. She would like to know what treatment is best and whether a healed umbilical hernia would rupture again in adult life during labor.
The present trend among doctors is to wait at least 2 years before surgically closing an umbilical hernia because in most cases they close spontaneously after about a year. Meanwhile the hernia causes the child no discomfort and does not interfere with the working of the abdominal organs.
The old practice of drawing the sides of the hernia together with adhesive tape was adopted chiefly to keep the doctor from being accused of sitting on his hands but we now know that watchful waiting is the best policy. This is because the adhesive tape is likely to irritate the infant's delicate skin and infection may develop under the tape. Furthermore, the practice of taping a one cent piece over the rupture not only does no good but may actually interfere

No Excuse For Secrecy

A prime example of unwarranted secrecy in government has been supplied by the Post Office Department. Last summer the Department hired 8,577 young people under a work plan which had as its aim helping deserving young persons save money for school purposes. The program, however, developed in large measure into a boondoggle, with many of the jobs being given as political favors and some of the jobholders coming from families which hardly needed financial assistance of any kind.

When Congress began to probe into charges that the program was being mismanaged, it sought the names of the workers. Postal officials refused the demand, taking refuge in a postal regulation which forbids publication of employee lists or information concerning pay and work designation. The names later were released by the Department with the lame explanation that summer had passed and young people were no longer on its payroll.

The request for the information came not from newspapermen nor from an interested taxpayer, but from Congress, which was told, in effect, to mind its own business. Neither national defense nor foreign policy was even remotely involved, so there were no possible reasons why the names of public employees, whose pay came from tax money, could not be made public.

The Post Office Department deliberately resorted to its interpretation of one of its own regulations to deny legitimate information and to avoid an embarrassing situation. This kind of subterfuge would be forbidden in the freedom of information bill passed Wednesday by the Senate and on which House action is promised early next year. The legislation provides that all information about the Government is to be made available to the public unless explicitly permitted to be kept secret by exemptions set forth in the bill. House approval and the President's signature are all that is required now to break down the wall of secrecy which some federal agencies have erected to conceal their actions. — Roanoke (Va.) Times

"When Caught In A Thunder Storm"

If you are caught outdoors in a violent thunderstorm, the safest thing to do is get soaking wet and try to be the shortest thing around. If grass is taller, then you are shorter than the grass! Lie down in a ditch. Why get soaking wet if you are stranded in the open? Because soaked clothes can quickly conduct the charge of electricity and keep it from going through YOU. If you are out golfing, fishing or hunting, drop all metal. Metal clubs, rods, and guns make you a lightning rod. When you're in a hole in the water, get to shore fast. Try to get to the bottom of a valley. Stand by a SMALL tree that is near tall trees. Stay away from any kind of high place, hill-top, tower. Stay away from isolated trees. Avoid tents, sheds, cabins in the open. Keep away from silos, windmills, TV towers. Safest places are dense woods, buildings in groups, your car, and public vehicles. But even inside your home or other building, be careful in a violent thunderstorm. The Lightning Protection Institute urges you to stay away from such appliances as lamps, fireplaces, exterior doors, porches and open windows. And after the storm, take your sweet time about touching any wire fencing. Fences are sometimes store electricity, as a battery, and deliver a lethal shock. — Chilton Times-Journal Wire.

POLICE HUSTLE a young woman off to jail after she and four others shouted "murderer" at a retired Marine Corps general at a session of the House Un-American Activities Committee in Washington Aug. 19. The target of the outburst was Brig. Gen. James D. Hittle, an officer of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The spectators apparently thought that Gen. Hittle had been active in the Vietnamese conflict.

Pilot Pinned in Wreckage, Rescued After 6 Long Days

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — For six days, injured John T. Emmanuel, sat pinned in his seat in a wrecked plane. Trucks sped by on Interstate 91, only a short distance away. Search planes buzzed overhead, their pilots unable to see the wreckage under the trees.

Beside Emmanuel, 39, lay the body of his friend, Richard C. Grimaldi, 32, who had been piloting the single-engine plane back to Hartford after a weekend holiday at Block Island, R.I.

A week ago this morning, the Cessna went down, bounced off the rocky face of Mt. Higby and fell into the woods at the bottom of the cliff.

As the days passed, Emmanuel sat trapped in the crumpled cockpit.

An air-sea search for the plane was pressed by the Federal Aviation Agency and the Coast Guard. They abandoned the search Thursday, but a number of private pilots and Connecticut authorities continued the hunt.

Spring Hill School Opens September 6

Spring Hill school faculty will meet August 25 at 9 a.m. School bus drivers will meet at 1 p.m. the same day, according to Supt. Clyde Mosler.

All students grades one through 12 will register Friday morning. Buses will run the same schedule as last year. Regular classes will begin on Sept. 6.

All school employees are reminded to bring a health certificate from their doctor.

The school cafeteria will start serving meals on September 6.

Rotary Hears of Problems Officers Have

Bill Wray presented a program on "Programs of the Present Day Peace Officer" at the Rotary Club luncheon meeting last Friday at the Town and Country.

Using material from the "FBI Magazine," he told about the new Supreme Court interpretation of the 4th Amendment to the Constitution which deals with search and seizure. In its effort to protect the defendant, the ruling greatly hampers the prosecution and peace officers.

Vice-president Clyde Fouse had charge of the business meeting and welcomed the following guests: City Police Chief Alvin Wilkins, State Police Capt. Milton Mosler, Raymond Branton and Buddy Sutton, both of Little Rock, and the Rev. Jim Aldridge, Atlanta, Tex.

Clark will succeed another azette staffer, Ernie Deane, who has accepted a job with the University of Arkansas in journalism and news department.

Hope Native Victim of U.S. Mistake

A native of Hope, Jerry Cloyd Phillips, was killed Aug. 11 when U.S. Air Force planes mistakenly strafed an American Coast Guard patrol boat off the coast of Viet Nam.

He was the grandson of D. B. Phillips Sr. of Hope and his mother, Mrs. Colin Ayers lives at Dee Park, Texas. He is also survived by his wife, Linela, and two small sons, of Corpus Christi, Texas.

A report of the incident said the Captain of the patrol boat and Phillips were killed and five others injured when jets strafed the coast by flaresights. He enlisted in the Air Force 10 years ago and had been in Viet Nam two months.

Airlines Are Back on Schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — Four of five major airlines which were struck by machinists expected to be flying normal schedules today.

The four lines — Trans World, United, Eastern and National — reported normal or near-normal service Sunday.

Some 1,600 American tourists stranded in Europe began streaming home aboard transatlantic flights. Trans World's first overseas flight brought 145 passengers to Kennedy Airport from Shannon Airport in Ireland. Trans World said it was one of a dozen flights bringing stranded persons back to the United States.

Northwest, the fifth line involved in the 43-day strike which ended last Friday, said more than 50 per cent of its service has been restored but did not expect full service until midweek when Seattle-Honolulu flights will resume.

Domestic flights generally were not crowded over the weekend, with many persons apparently staying with their original travel plans by car, bus or train.

National Airlines reported, however, "better than 90 per cent" business, adding that its New York to Florida jets were flying with "good loads," generally about 90 passengers.

A United spokesman said passenger volume out of Kennedy and Newark airports was running about 70 per cent of normal, with an above-normal number of "no shows" — persons who make reservations but fail to show up.

Don't Curb Un-Americans, Official Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Treasury Department official told House investigators today that proposed legislation to curb anti-war groups is unnecessary and might infringe on the constitutional rights of Americans.

Fred B. Smith, the Treasury's general counsel, told the House Committee on Un-American Activities that the department opposes a bill to authorize penalties for making shipments to the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese and for interfering with movement of men and supplies to South Viet Nam.

The Justice Department is expected to take a similar position when Deputy Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark testifies Tuesday. But the acting chairman, Joe R. Pool, D-Tex., the chief sponsor of the legislation, said he remains confident Congress will enact it.

The committee's second week of hearings opened in the half-filled caucus room with none of the tension and disruption that marked four turbulent days of hearings last week into the activities of antiwar groups.

In a statement to the committee, Smith said "I personally am revolted by the conduct of our citizens, particularly students and mentors on the faculties of some of our outstanding universities, in advocating assistance to foreign powers and groups who are engaged in warfare endangering the lives of members of our armed forces."

Smith said he was "sympathetic with the motives which underlie the sponsorship of this legislation," but opposed extending existing laws against the delivery or sending of material to hostile countries.

Jeers, Rocks Greet Open Housing Group

CHICAGO (AP) — Jeers, rocks and firecrackers greeted open-housing marches in two Chicago-area neighborhoods but Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said heavy rain checked possible violence.

A third march Sunday was all but ignored.

Two of the three marches ventured into suburbs for the first time. A court injunction obtained by the city Friday banned any group from sponsoring more than one march at a time within the city limits.

King walked through a driving rain with 500 members of the civil rights force into the neighborhood called East Side on Chicago's extreme Southeast Side. A volley of green apples, beer cans, rocks, bottles and firecrackers were tossed at the soaked marchers.

King said: "The hostility was not as glaring as it might have been. The people (white spectators) were kept away by rain. The demonstrations will continue."

At Evergreen Park, a southwestern suburb, the Rev. James Bevel led a protest by 250 civil rights advocates. A third group of 250 trudged through drenched streets in Chicago Heights, a community south of Chicago. No one came out into the rain to jeer them and few watched.

Police said 20 persons were arrested at the East Side and Evergreen Park demonstrations.

A force of 186 Cook County, state and suburban police kept angry segments of the hecklers from threatening the marchers' safety in Evergreen Park.

More than 500 white residents stood in puddles on lawns, sidewalks and curbs to heckle the demonstrators. Firecrackers exploded at the feet of policemen and bottles crashed near the marchers.

As the auto caravan of demonstrators arrived for the march in Evergreen Park, white youths hurled stones and smashed one windshield, injuring both occupants of the car.

In the East Side march, police skirmished continually with youths who tossed missiles into the path of the marchers. The youths then ran to alleys where police pursuit was often futile.

3,000 Dead in the Turkey Quake and 2,300 Are Injured

By AHMET BALAN
ERZURUM, Turkey (AP) — Two new earth shocks today struck dazed and rubble towns of eastern Turkey, where the government launched the massive campaign to fight hunger and disease among thousands of refugees from last week's killer earthquake.

The new temblors caused little damage and no casualties to add to the toll from Friday's disastrous quake—2,300 bodies counted, with estimates 3,000 may have died. But the shocks spread fear and panic among the people, many sleeping in the open.

Relief crews ministered to 2,300 injured and thousands left homeless. Others dug through the ruins of homes in towns and villages looking for more victims.

Health officials were afraid a cholera epidemic raging across the border in Iraq might spread north to Turkey.

For the peasants, the main fear was not disease but a recurrence of the major quake. Both small quakes came before dawn this morning and followed after-shocks Saturday and Sunday.

The peasants slept in the open fields, under cone-shaped tents or wrapped in thick blankets.

Bodies uncovered from debris were being buried as soon as possible, often even before identification.

Some survivors asked for picks and shovels to dig out their dead relatives, later wrapping the corpses in bed sheets and snuggling around them in tears for hours.

Efforts were under way to drop bread and other food from airplanes to 29 isolated villages. Supplies being flown into the disaster region by the Turkish government include wheat, margarine and milk powder.

U.S. Army Lt. Col. Carl Kuefer, of Ft. Wadsworth, N.Y., stationed in Erzurum as an American military adviser with the Turkish 3rd Army, said: "I was in my fifth-floor hotel apartment when the earthquake hit."

"The hotel is the tallest and most modern building in this city. It's a six-story reinforced steel frame building."

"Suddenly everything began to shake back and forth — chandeliers, lamps, everything."

"When that happens and you're up that high in a building, you just sit there and gamble if I'll hold together."

"We were lucky. The building did hold together."

U.S. officials in Ankara said they have received no reports of American casualties in the disaster area. They said that they had not heard from three Peace Corps members working with peasants in the countryside.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Peace Corpsman Ashley Campbell of Medford, Mass., was stationed in southern Erzurum.

Planes From Guam Blast Enemy Bases

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — For the second straight day, giant Air Force B52 bombers from Guam struck twin blows at Communist bases in South Viet Nam today.

One formation of the B52s bombarded a Viet Cong base only 45 miles east of Saigon. Another wave of the eight-engined jets struck an enemy training and resupply camp 120 miles southwest of Saigon.

A full continued in the ground fighting. Only small, scattered patrol actions were reported today.

In the city of Gia Dinh, near Saigon, a terrorist threw a grenade today at a military jeep, and four U.S. servicemen and an American civilian were wounded, none seriously. A Vietnamese woman passerby also was wounded. The terrorist escaped.

Sunday, B52s also hit two enemy target areas — a suspected Viet Cong division headquarters near the Cambodian border 65 miles northwest of Saigon, and a North Vietnamese troop concentration area two miles south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam.

While the B52s were hitting the Communists in the South, U.S. fighter-bombers continued their daily attacks on Communist supply and transport facilities in North Viet Nam Sunday, the U.S. military command reported today.

American pilots flew 102 missions over North Viet Nam Sunday, hitting at four missile sites around Hanoi, six oil storage depots and other targets.

Fliers reported they damaged three of the four surface-to-air missile sites attacked. One site was nine miles south of the North Vietnamese capital and another was 10 miles southwest of Hanoi.

The U.S. fliers also claimed they damaged or destroyed 15 bridges, 26 supply buildings, 64 trucks, seven antiaircraft gun positions, 28 boxcars and 15 barges.

Navy pilots from the carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt struck a rail yard just outside the city of Thanh Hoa in North Viet Nam and reported the area was engulfed in flames and a thick column of black smoke rose to 8,000 feet as they departed.

They destroyed 10 railroad tank cars and two storage buildings and cut rail lines in three places, a spokesman said.
